

PEOPLE

JAN 12, 2021

SHARE

Consulting firm names CEO

InfoWorks elevates role of president; founder to serve as board executive chairman

AUTHORS Staff Reports

Ryan Gallagher
Courtesy of InfoWorks

Nashville-based management consulting company InfoWorks has named company president Ryan Gallagher as its new CEO.

According to a release, InfoWorks founder and former CEO Jim Clayton will remain with the company as executive chairman of the board.

Previously serving as InfoWorks president, Gallagher helped to more than triple the company's revenue after having joined InfoWorks in 2012. Prior to that, he served as a senior associate at Booz Allen Hamilton in Washington, D.C., advising senior-level clients.

Gallagher no longer serves as president, and the company does not anticipate filling that role in the foreseeable future.

The treasurer of the board of directors for High Hopes Development Center, Gallagher also is an ambassador and past board member for TechBridge and a former board member for both Alive Hospice and Junior Achievement.

"Ryan has been an integral part of the InfoWorks team in his role as president for nine years, and he has a proven track record of success," Clayton said in the release. "I'm confident in his ability to take the reins as CEO and lead the company's growth in the future."

As board chairman, Clayton will establish and lead InfoWorks committees related to audit, executive compensation, investment and nominating.

InfoWorks serves clients in the health care, financial services, manufacturing, and retail industries. It is an employee-owned business.